A galaxy far, far away is celebrated on Star Wars Day on May 4.

Star Wars day represents more than just a quote in a film, the day itself is internationally recognized and is now as much a part of life as some of the most popular holidays you can name, we just have to ask ourselves why this is.

When we think of Star Wars Day, it's not only a day, it's something fun, and it's also a joke that pretty much everybody is a part of. While it may sound silly, something as incredibly simple as National Star Wars Days has played a huge part in bringing people together no matter what background they are from.

The way you celebrate will depend on how well you know this cultural phenomenon. If you are a longtime fan of the franchise, you might get together with a group of friends and attend one of the many Star Wars events.

Events range from costume contests to museum exhibits. If you prefer to stay in, movie marathons with friends, Star Wars trivia games and even themed snacks will guarantee the day is full of fun!

However you choose to celebrate, have fun and

May the 4th be with you!
